Presenting queen of the airwaves, Sara Cox

When Sara Cox strolled into GLAMOUR's '50s-style kitchen followed by Lola, her two-year-old daughter, she looked every inch the yummy mummy – and a far cry from the beer-loving ladette of yesteryear.

Although Sara's GLAMOUR Award is snatched from the hands of last year's winner and fellow Radio 1 DJ Edith Bowman, don't expect rivalry at the station. "We're a big, happy family," says Sara. "Many an event has been born out of a DJ brainstorm in a pub over a pint. Seriously though, I'm chuffed to bits about the award."

But if you thought this was the broadcaster's only accolade in the last year you'd be wrong. Not only did she canter into fourth place for BBC Sport Relief's Only Fools On Horses, ("I crashed my horse!"), Sara was also awarded an honorary doctorate from Bolton University. "There I was in my gown calling myself 'Doctor'," she giggles. "It were great!" ▶
